

1190 - Ruling on shaving another man's beard

the question

I am a committed Muslim and I have a beard. I own a barber shop for men. This is my profession, and it means that I shave my customers' beards and use dryers to style their hair. What is the Islamic ruling on this?

Detailed answer

It is forbidden for a Muslim to shave his own beard because of the saheeh reports that indicate that this is forbidden. It is also forbidden for another man to shave a person's beard, because this entails cooperating in sin, which is forbidden in the aayah (interpretation of the meaning): "... do not help one another in sin and transgression..." [Al-Maa'idah 5:2]

It is permissible for you to comb and style men's hair, and apply oils and perfume to it, but it is not permissible for you to do this for women, except for those who are your mahrams (close relatives to whom marriage is forbidden).
