

Islam Question & Answer

General Supervisor:
Shaykh Muhammad Saalih al-Munajjid

12867 - Ruling on saying “you don’t deserve this” to one who is sick

the question

Sometimes when people visit a person who is sick, they say to him, “you don’t deserve this”. Or when they hear that a certain person is sick, they say, “By Allaah, he doesn’t deserve that. We hope that you can tell us whether it is permissible to say this or not?”

Detailed answer

Praise be to Allaah.

It is not permissible to say this, because it is like objecting to Allaah, may He be exalted. He knows best about the situation of His slaves, and He is Most Wise in what He decrees for them of health and sickness, richness and poverty, and so on.

What is prescribed is to say, “May Allaah grant him good health and heal him,” and similar good phrases.

May Allaah help all the Muslims to understand their religion and adhere to it steadfastly, for He is the Best to be asked.