

69792 - Ruling on vaginal discharge

the question

I am 24 years unmarried girl. my problem is that sometimes a yellow or somewhat white fluid is discharged but i do not need to use pad for it because the quantity is small, according to my mother that it is because of physical weakness or tension, and she says that my maternal aunt had also same problem. i read about this problem in different Doctor's magazine they also take it as weakness. now my main question is that can i pray in that condition, and if i pray do i need to change my dress, and how long my wudoo will be valid. one thing which i should make clear is that it is not bound to pre/post menstruation.

Detailed answer

Praise be to Allah.

In the answer to question no. 50404 there is the ruling on the discharges that come from a woman's uterus, in which we explained that the discharges that come from a woman's uterus are taahir (pure), and what comes out from the urethra is najis (impure). In both cases the woman is required to do wudoo'.

Based on this, there is nothing wrong with you praying in this case, and you do not have to change or wash your clothes because this discharge is taahir.

The period during which your wudoo' remains valid is the time of the prayer for which you did wudoo'. So you have to do wudoo' for the prayer after the time for it begins, and your wudoo' will remain valid even if this discharge comes out, until the time for that prayer ends, then you should do wudoo' for the next prayer, and so on.

Islam Question & Answer

General Supervisor:

Shaykh Muhammad Saalih al-Munajjid

It is not permissible for you to pray two obligatory prayers with one wudoo', unless you have joined them for one of the reasons for which prayers may be joined.

And Allaah knows best.